SELECTED EVENTS OF 1998

January:

Taliban leader, Mullah Omar, said that they would not allow the United States to interfere in internal affairs of Afghanistan nor would they accede to any outside pressure regarding the present state of Afghan women. "The Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan is well aware of the rights of Afghan women and they have been given all due rights under Islamic laws."

A number of people were killed and injured in a rocket attack on the Customs checkpoint by Anti-Taliban just across the Pakistan-Afghan border at Torkham.

February:

Aid agencies appealed for US$157 million, under the Consolidated Appeal, to help thousands of Afghans whose lives have been ruined by 18 years of war.

Devastating earthquake in a remote and freezing Rustaq District, Takhar Province left an estimated 3,000 dead and thousands injured.

March:

A high level delegation of the UN and the OIC, led by UN Special Envoy, Ambassador Lakhdar Brahimi arrived in Islamabad on a mission aimed at opening peace talks between the Afghan warring factions.

The UN Special Envoy said the UN was considering imposing an arms embargo on Afghanistan – to be jointly implemented by the six neighbouring countries, as well as the United States and Russia.

International Women's Day (8 March) was designated to Afghan women this year to focus attention on their miserable plight; under the campaign entitled "A flower for the women of Kabul".

April:

Carol Bellamy, UNICEF Executive Director, visited Kabul for talks with Taliban authorities.

Bill Richardson, US Presidential envoy, met with Taliban Head of Kabul Shura, Mullah Rabbani in Kabul; and former President Burhannuddin Rabbani, General Dostum and Karim Khalili in Shiberghan.

Taliban in talks with US officials said they were not prepared to enforce a ban on poppy cultivation until farmers have been given the opportunity to earn an alternative income.

May:

The third Afghan Support Group (ASG) meeting took place in London.

UN team arrived in Kabul to seek to restart programmes in the Kandahar region. After ten days of talks both parties signed a MOU.

India conducted a series of 5 nuclear tests on 11 May.

Pakistan conducted a series of nuclear tests on 28 May in Balochistan.

For the second time in 1998, a devastating earthquake (7.1 on the Richter Scale) ripped through northern Afghanistan - Rustaq, Chah Ab districts in Takhar and Shahr-e-Buzurg and Faizabad districts in Province of Badakhshan – killing some 5,000 people.

June:

Iran launched another peace initiative for Afghanistan in a bid to end the conflict of the neighbouring country.

The UN resented the closure of girls' schools in Kabul. Closure would have a devastating impact on the welfare of many of the city's neediest people particularly women and children.
